

Pip Rae Bio

Pip Rae is a Podcast Host and Producer.

After spending nearly two decades investigating crime as a Police Officer, she now writes and provides social justice commentary from her own and others' experiences from the front line, in particular, Gender Inequality, Mental Health, Domestic Violence, Women in Sport, Women and Money.

Pip is an advocate for change and possesses an intimate knowledge of feminist issues and has continued her research in the areas of Womens Empowerment.

She is able to articulate the influencing and contributing factors in areas of Domestic Abuse, AVO and Domestic Violence and discuss the processes in the capacity of Criminal Proceedings. With a deep understanding of the attitudes held by both genders in these areas, Pip is approaching the solution from all 360 degrees of perception.

Pip conducts research and speaks with key stakeholders in candid and fact driven interviews that are both thought provoking and specific to the matrix and complexity of these high order concepts.

Suggested Questions

How to create a Podcast?

What is the root cause, contributing and influencing factors of domestic violence?

Do AVO's work, is there more we can do or other options to deal with this national Crisis?

What are the statistics of DV, what else needs to be included to get a full picture of the problem and how it affects our communities?

How do women become and stay empowered, sustain intimate relationships and independence?

Over Arching Theme: Womens Empowerment
Gender Inequality, Mental Health, Domestic Violence, Women in Sport, Women and Money